Prologue

As one, who wearied by his soul's unrest,
And by the vain turmoil that we call life,
Enters at noon a forest cool and dim,
And resting in the solace of its shade,
Forgets the heat and ardor of the fight,
Hears nought but cheerful murmurings of the brook,
The wild sweet notes of wood birds, and o'er all,
Feels the calm pulsing of the forest's heart;

So you, if by mischance, you may have lost
Your joy in life and faith in human kind,
May enter now the pages of our book,
It may be you will find your solace there,
For in it neither grief, nor pain, nor care,
Have found a place; and if it show to you
The true proportions of this motley life
And give you faith to smile and strive again,
We have not worked in vain.

“Use Thy Gumption”

“Common sense is the ability to detect values —to know a big thing from a little one.
I’d rather possess common sense than to have six degrees from Trinity College, Oxford.”

Though a quotation from whom I know not, I heartily agree.

Susan J. Cunningham

To that long line of Swarthmore students, from the first graduating class, in 1873,
who have studied with me the true, the beautiful, and the good in the noblest literature of the world, my cordial greetings.

William Hyde Appleton

The mountaineer calls back to his fellows later upon the road: "It is glorious upon these heights—let nothing daunt you nor dishearten you!" So, from the height of years, one may cheer the younger comrades on, with Browning's promise: "The best is yet to be!"

Elizabeth Powell Bond

The Library Chimes

Long may these mighty bells peal forth,
Long throw their voices on the air,
And celebrate through far-off years
The class whose noble name they bear ;
Long may they mark the rolling hours
With mellow music wild and sweet,
And solemn harmonies that surge
O'er college hill and village street !

Soft will their mellow echoes fall
Among the bookish aisles below,
Soft will they toll the precious hours
For eager hearts that come and go.
Soft will they sound for him who reads
And weighs the words of ancient sage,
And softly blend their harmonies
With every well-loved poet's page.

SWARTHMORE SPIRIT.

Words by JACKSON TAYLOR, Jr., '02.

Music by IVA A. APPLEBY, '13.

1. Come join in a song to the Col - lege we love,
 2. When in the full-ness of vic - t'ry we meet,
 3. Ours is the cheer of the brave days gone by;

Loud let it ring to the skies..... Sing - ing the deeds of her men,..... 'Tis the spir - it she bred that has won us the fight, And we'll Hope of the brave days be - fore,..... Faith that thy glo - ry will grow with the years,

Chorus.

Gar-net's the col - or she flies..... cheer her a - gain and a - gain.....
Bright - er and bright-er, Swarth-more.....

Our hearts are true to Swarth - more, Swarth - more, Swarth - more, .

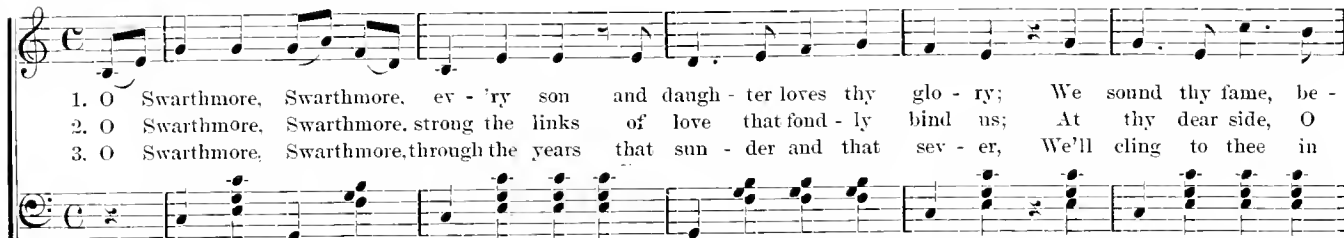

Ev - er her fame we'll strive for, Ev - er her name we'll praise;..... And in the years here - aft - er, In dark or sun - ny ways,..... Our hearts will turn to Swarth - more and col - lege days.....

SWARTHMORE FOREVER.

Music arranged by IVA A. APPLEBY, '13.

Words by JOHN RUSSELL HAYES, '88.

1. O Swarthmore, Swarthmore, ev - 'ry son and daugh - ter loves thy glo - ry; We sound thy fame, be -
2. O Swarthmore, Swarthmore, strong the links of love that fond - ly bind us; At thy dear side, O
3. O Swarthmore, Swarthmore, through the years that sun - der and that sev - er, We'll cling to thee in lov - ed name, in cheer and song and sto - ry. With cour - age high and hon - or clear, No true and tried, thou shalt for - ev - er find us. On field and track, in class and hall, We mem - o - ry for - ev - er and for - ev - er. Through years of sun - shine and of storm Our name of all is half so dear As Al - ma Ma - ter ev - er, O Swarth - more for - ev - er!

an - swer glad - ly to the call Of Al - ma Ma - ter ev - er, O Swarth - more for - ev - er!
loy - al hearts shall still beat warm For Al - ma Ma - ter ev - er, O Swarth - more for - ev - er!

Rata E. Willitt, Mayville, N. Y.,

German.

"Good company and good discourse are the very sinews of virtue."

Prepared at Mayville High School (1906); member of Somerville Literary Society.

Joseph Henry Willits, Ward, Pa.,

Economics.

"Wisdom and worth were all he had."

Prepared at Media High School; member of Delphic Literary Society, President (IV—1); member of Track Team; member of College Debating Team (II, III, IV); President Debating Board (IV); College Oratorical Contest (III); Editor of Phoenix.

Katharine Reinoehl Witmeyer, K K F, Lebanon, Pa.,

French.

"And then her looks—Oh, where's the heart so wise, Could, unbewildered, meet those matchless eyes?"

Prepared at Lebanon High School; member of Somerville Literary Society; member of Sophomore-Freshman Reception Committee; member of College Reception Committee (II); member of $\Pi \Gamma \Pi$; "Peanut Girl" for Circus (II, III, IV).

Elizabeth Clarke Yocum, Norristown, Pa.,

German.

"Fair, strong, arm'd, but to be won by force."

Prepared at Norristown High School and Friends' Central, Philadelphia; member of Somerville Literary Society; Secretary (II), Vice President (III) and President (IV) of Athletic Association; member of Athletic Council (II, III, IV); member of Class Basketball Teams (I, II, III, IV), Captain (I, II, III, IV); member of Varsity Basketball Team (I, II, III, IV), Captain (IV); member of Class Hockey Teams (I, II, III, IV); member of Varsity Hockey Team (II, III, IV), Captain (IV); member of Class Gymnasium Team (II, III, IV); member of Varsity Gymnasium Team (II, III, IV); member of Phoenix Staff (III); member of Consumers' League; member of $\Pi \Gamma \Pi$; member of $\Delta \Lambda \Sigma$.

Eugene Edward Ayres, Jr.,

Chester, Pa.

A bright physics and chemistry mark,
A conics and calculus shark,
An author, a dreamer,
At tennis a screamer,
And plays and sings like a lark.

(But not like a real hearty, robust, cheerful lark. I think that lark had the pip.)

Amy Baker, K A Θ,

Philadelphia, Pa.

She comes into a messy room—things waltz into their places;
She smiles a very radiant smile—people unbend their faces;
She talks and studies just enough—and then goes off to bed;
She goes home over Sunday—and Don, he—well, nuff said!

Elisabeth Hallowell Bartlett, K K T.

Baltimore, Md.

"No, I don't want to cut Glee Club again, and I have right much work to do, so I just guess I'll stay home this time. Thee sees, there's so much going on this week; this is the only chance I'll have to get any work done and it does pile up so! Run along and ask somebody else. Oh, no, you won't miss me. I know you'll have a good time. Good-by." Bartie is awfully unfortunate in having both remarkable social propensities and a persevering conscience. She has an awfully hard time, for somehow, people will insist upon asking her to go places. The funny part of it is, that she never seems to be in a hurry, but that may be on account of her wonderful stride. If you hear a shriek from her room, followed by, "Hush, Martha!" don't blame Martha for it.

Bessie Bew, H B Φ,

There once was a girl named Bess Bew,
Her visits to college were few,—
Things outside, you know,
Take up one's time so,
Specially if 'twere a man that one knew.

Swarthmore, Pa.

Helen Leigh Blanton,

Philadelphia, Pa.

Helen is going to make a perfect angel sometime. She has already made rapid advance upward from the Class of 1911 to 1912. With her real, 14-karat, self-luminous halo of glory, and her graceful motions naturally fitted for flying, she can recite soothingly to St. Peter when the crowd of Swarthmoreans at the Gate get on his nerves. But at present we prefer to see Helen eating warmed-up Campbell's Soup in the Day-Students' Room.

P. S.—Judging from the Blue Bird, Helen would also make good fire down below.

Alice Marie Bolton,

Philadelphia, Pa.

In her room beside the heater,
By the smelly, red-hot gas stove,
Sits the cold and sleepy Alice,
Sits the lazy, chilly Alice.
Fiercely do her friends assail her,
Saying, "Oh, thou humorous woman,
Tell us of some funny story,
Stir us up to careless laughter."
But the maiden only answers,
"Chase yourselves, and let me slumber."

Madeleine Brown,

Swarthmore, Pa.

"Say, when are you coming down to see me? Can't you come to lunch next Tuesday?"
(The answer is always, "Yes," for invitations to Brown's are worth accepting.) In between Madeleine brings up young spreads and entertains a few guests for lunch in Room 316, while the rest of the hall goes to onion hash with a groan.

Fay Burger.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Fay has been more fortunate than the majority of us in having been given an excellent opportunity for showing that progressive spirit and ability to rise above circumstances that we all have, in the potential. When she came here, an innocent child, she was thrown into the midst of that '13 gang. With true 1912 spirit she carried off her position with dignity until such time as it seemed fitting for her to take her proper place with us.

Charles Aaron Collins,

Moorestown, N. J.

Oh! Charlie came to our town,
And he was wondrous dumb;
But he jumped into athletics
Just to try to get some fun.

And when he found he played lacrosse,
And basketball besides,
He got along remarkably,
And now he's wondrous wise.

Anna Washington Detweiler,

Reading, Pa.

Freshman year Anna decided to major in German and entered a few courses with Dr. Battin. At the end of the year he asked for a year's absence for study in Berlin, secretly hoping he could catch up with her. Patiently she waited, toying now and then with Dr. Newport. And now—Dr. B. has returned—aber, ach Himmel, nun ist Anna in der Universität von Penn ein Deutsch course getaking.

Wilmer C. Dutton, $\Phi \Sigma K$,

Chester, Pa.

Otherwise known as the "Ah-ven-noo Boy," or "Mutton." A ladies' man from the words go to gone. He looks innocent, guileless, but long is the string of broken hearts he has left behind him. He is not a brilliant student, nor yet an athlete, but—well, don't you think he has pretty hair?

Donald Renwick Ferguson, K Σ,

Philadelphia, Pa.

"Good morning, Fergie."

"Hi!"

"Not grumpy this morning, I see."

"Nope, feeling fine; training season over, and a big party at Hamilton Court to-night. Besides, I just killed an organic exam. You ought to see the pull I've got with Doe. now."

"I thought you'd be grouchy. I heard you almost had a fight this morning."

"I've gotten over that; but say, did you see what that guy did. He deliberately ran up against a girl; absolutely no reason why he should, don't you know. Just knocked up against her, like that, you know. I'd of pasted him one if there hadn't been women around. Some of these fellows around here make me sick; not an atom of gentlemanliness about them, don't you know. I'd like to get my hands on some of 'em."

"You going? Well, so long."

Avis Loraine Fitch, K K Γ,

Flushing, N. Y.

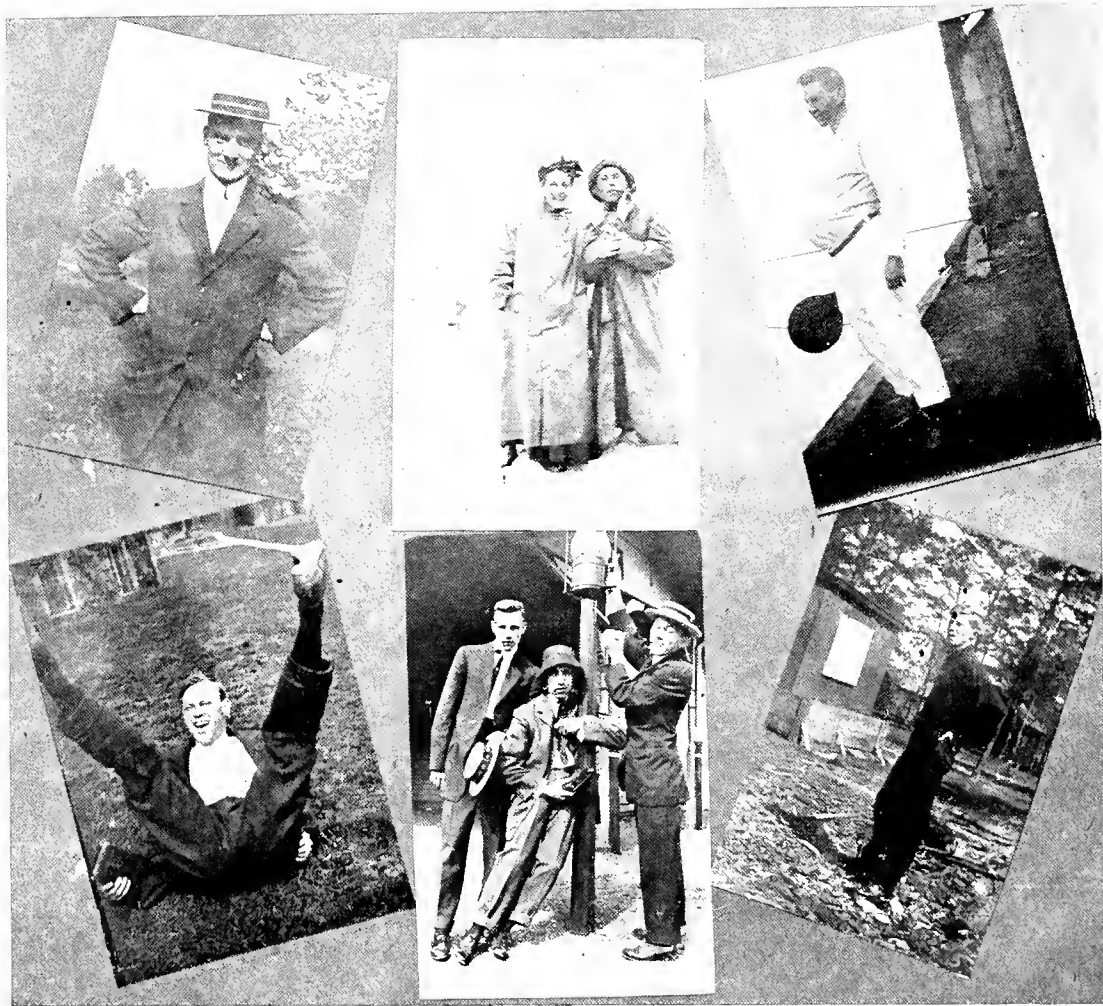

Loraine comes patter, patter out of the dining room. "I can't see why they still insist on giving us fried scrapple three times a week. I'm going to the pie Shop and get out of this pretty reasonable, I guess. Girls, our digestions will be simply ruined if we have to live on this much longer, and we had fried mush for breakfast besides." She puts back one stray lock, putting it in place with her head tipped a little to one side and her bright brown eyes shining. Those pink cheeks haven't been living on fried diet all their days!

Clara Elizabeth Frazee, H Σ,

Baltimore, Md.

Fourth-hour bell rings and down the hall comes a sound. As it approaches vigorous girls shiver and shrink back pale and unstrung. Doors and windows slam shut, the hall lights go out, a pall of gloom and pain descends upon Third West. It is Clara singing, "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

Claude Francis Gilchrist, $\phi K \Psi$,

Marion, Ind.

This handsome young lad is called Gilly;
He combs his hair like a Willy.

He loves to play ball,
And sing best of all.
And oh! how silly is Gilly.

Marion Duffield Gran,

Swarthmore, Pa.

Marion looks quiet and easy-going, but she really is most particular. She is, as Miss Lape defines it, metriculous (i. e., scrupulous to a degree of fussiness). There are two things that Marion is particularly fussy about: Ducky's views on religion (you see she is an Orthodox Christian) and the pronunciation of her last name.

Margaret Elizabeth Green,

Bartow, Fla.

Tabulated Summary of M. E. G.

Eyes—brown or black.

(a) Sober when calm ($\frac{1}{8}$ total time).

(b) Increased diameter and emit sparks when excited ($\frac{7}{8}$ total time).

Sounds—

1. Articulate speech.

(a) Common or habitual—e. g., “just grand!!!”—accompanied by eye-sparks (see above).

(b) Transitory—e. g., spells of extreme seriousness.

2. Inarticulate.

Squeals in history.

Chief Product—Fudge, made in five minutes from any borrowed materials—world-wide fame.

Robert Wright Hackman,

Womelsdorf, Pa.

“Happy Heine”—the dumb Dutchman. He looks as bright as Flick’s hair, but wait until you see him with one of his father’s “Lucy Grey’s” in his month, trying to let Wells’s explanation of some reaction take root in his brain. You’d swear then that there was no place for it to take root. And yet he’s a lot like Vic in a good many ways.

Anne Shoemaker Haines, K K I,

Swarthmore, Pa.

“I’m sure I don’t see why you say I should do it—lots of people would be better than I. If I came up this evening it will only be the fifth time I’ve been home and back to college to-day. But go on—I don’t mind.”

That’s Anne for you. She’s always ready and capable to help anyone out with anything. Those who know one half that Anne does—and those people are few—wonder how she accomplishes it and keeps that monotonous row of A’s in the office.

Eleanor Halsey,

Swarthmore, Pa.

Eleanor has reappeared on our horizon, after two years’ absence, as a star of the first magnitude. Competent authorities have prophesied that she will eclipse Dr. Goddard, Mr. Hayes and Julia Marlowe in their respective branches within a short time. At present she sits on the first row in English Poetry and commands Dr. G.’s wonder and respect when she speaketh.

William Darrach Halsey,

Swarthmore, Pa.

Helping helpless hams
Always after A's.
Learning little, but local lectures,
Spectacular sprinter in spring;
Envied, emulous, enslaved, engineer;
Yapping Yankee yearning to yeomandry.

John Ernest Hartman, $\phi \Sigma K$,

Hard-hitting, howling happiness,
Another anxiety to Alleman.
Raising rows round Wharton,
Teasing the table,
Meaning to marry Mary,
'Andsome as 'Arry,
Never new nor never old.

Dillsburg, Pa.

Anna May Haslett,

Philadelphia, Pa.

My, what an appetite she has! Indeed, her capacity for books seems unlimited. You dare not put a book in front of her, for in less than five minutes she will have absorbed its entire contents, leaving you nothing but the cover. We are sorry that Swarthmore is unable to satisfy Anna's craving, and that she must spend her summers in the Philadelphia library assimilating all that is within its walls.

Mildred Grace Hoadley, K A Θ,

Swarthmore, Pa.

DRAMA IN TWO ACTS. DRAMATIS PERSONA, M. G. H.

SCENE—College Dining Room.

ACT I. (Enter our vice president's daughter, haughty tread, nose and chin uplifted, seats herself with quiet dignity.)—"Fresh! Fresh! Hullo, Midsie."

Mildred (freezing stare).—"Were you speaking to me?"

ACT II. (Enter Mids, waltzes across the room and "drops" into a chair, smiles disturb her freckles.)

Mids.—"Hullo, People. Aren't you glad to see me? Yes, you aren't. Do you know what that red and white pole down town is? Relic of barbarism. Don't smile, it might crack your face. Who bought that candy? Ah, ha! The plot thickens, as the gardener remarked as he looked at the lawn."

William King Hoyt,

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Oh! Hoyt is the king of them all,
He makes some others look small;
For he can take hold,
And get this book sold;
But his head has grown larger since fall.

Bill's our manager, and the whole staff is willing to back him with every cent they own against any previous or future manager. He's there!

Horace C. Jenkins,

Gwynedd, Pa.

Jingling, jaunty, jabbering, joking,
Eagerly earnest, envy envoking.
Nice and not naughty. Nasty? No never!
Kareful, koncise, kurios and klevor.
Interesting infant; imp idiotic.
Naturely nimble, Nature's narcotic.
Silly and sober, sensitive, sappy—
Here is a lad that makes us all happy.

Florence Manning Lippincott,

Woodstown, N. J.

Florence is a very polite person, and she expects the same measure of courtesy from her friends. If one forgets to say, "Excuse me," to her she is offended. She doesn't mind being injured, but she does hate not to have the wound healed by an apology.

Cornelia Lillian Lounsbury,

Cornelia is a dainty elf,
Her voice is soft and low;
Her major is in History,
And Hull is her hero.
She hardly ever laughs at all,
Unless it's at a joke,
Tho Horace at the Junior Dance
Had both his eardrums broke:

Plainfield, N. J.

As "Bread" she made an awful hit,
And when she fell down stairs;
The Y. W. C. A. and Temperance League
Have weighed her down with cares.
Always with a wan, sad smile,
She greets you in the hall;
She's wasting rapidly away,
Yet is cheerful through it all.

Phebe Lukens, K K T,

Swarthmore, Pa.

There's a springiness in her springness when she springs,
And a clinginess in her clingness when she clings,
But the springiness in her springness,
And the clinginess in her clingness,
Is nothing to her singiness when she sings.

Walter Lee Lukens, J P,

Swarthmore, Pa.

Is this not a handsome boy? Yes, it is not. If his father had only kept his face from warping when he was a baby, he might have some claim to the beauty prize; but alas! his father wasn't watchful. And see how he wabbles when he walks! Did you really think he was a duck, little girl? No, he's only a bird of a lacrosse player. See the pretty dimple in his left cheek. That means he can paint and draw. I have honestly seen him draw water. Wasn't that a funny joke.

Helen Crawford Marr, H B O,

Swarthmore, Pa.

"Come right in. Excuse me if I keep on sewing. Study? Oh, yes, I ought to, but I'd rather embroider. I quite forgot to go to Gym yesterday. I got so interested, but I'm sure it will be all right. Oh, isn't College grand! I just think everything is beautiful and everybody is so nice. The dearest girl is coming to see me this afternoon! I just wish you could meet her; couldn't you wait just a teenie little speck of a while?"

Edith May Martin,

Norristown, Pa.

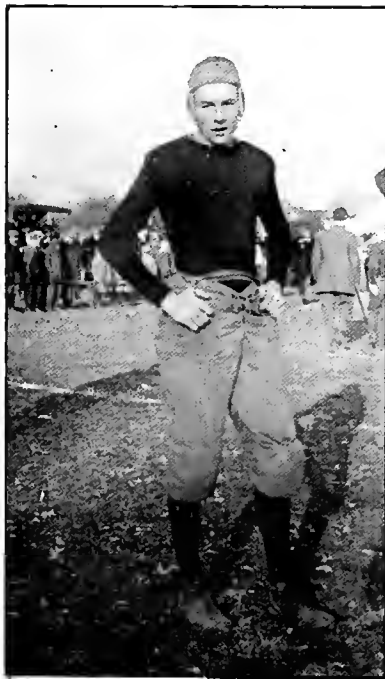

"I'll do that little stunt."

Edith has a singular fondness for this expression.

Her pet aversion is the French department. She sits in abject terror while Monsieur Redfield peers over his glasses and singles out his victim. The words "Mademoiselle Martin, voulez vous continuer s'il vous plaît," sound as the crack of doom in her ears.

A parting shot, "Did anybody mention the Smock family?" We wonder wherein lies the attraction.

Florence Meredith,

Long Branch, N. J.

"Oh, I'm just dead tired after the dance, only I must go to town to take my books into Leary's. I haven't any money, you know. I piled twenty-five books into one suit case and then I couldn't lift it. Guess I'll carry some in my arms. And my hair's such a sight, this morning. Didn't have time to curl it last night, you know. Good-by."

James Elsworth Mitchell, K Σ,

Millville, N. J.

"Hello there, Jimmy; gotten over your dance last night?"

"Yes, Beau; and I sure did have some time. That dame I had was a pippin. Dance? Gee! she could dance. I could "drop" all night with her. Ah, Beau! when that old violin would start in, and she'd sail along—whee! Some class to that dame of yours, too. She's a swell

"dropper." Got some life to it. It makes me tired to see some of these couples go mooning along, as if the only thing they wanted was a hugging match. People like that ought to go off in some dark corner and do it right; don't you think so?"

"Come on, and walk down town."

"No, I've got a bunch of work to do. I owe Louis three reports, and he's going to kick me a-b—out of his course, if I don't hand them in before Monday. Before you go, though, you haven't got a Fat-im-a about your person, have you? Thanks. So long!"

Richard Henry Murfit, J I,

Somerton, Pa.

Any Sunday night:

"Where were you all morning, Dick?"

"Downtown."

"Vic's?"

"Down at church."

"Where've you been all afternoon?"

"Out walking."

"Didn't see you around for supper. At the pieshop?"

"Huh, only had seven cents. Was down at Parker's."

Later, in bed (confidentially):

"Say, Dick, you aren't engaged, are you?"

"Ha! Ha! You old fool. Trying to kid me? But anyhow the dog don't bark at me now."

Mary Eliza Osgood, K A Θ,

Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
What makes you freeze me so—
When I offer a swap from a good old top?—
For you aren't bad looking, you know.

Hammonton, N. J.

Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
What makes you say you're starved?
The dinner was good, as goes college food,—
Was it T. R. Taylor that carved?

Samuel Eastburn Phipps, J V,

Samuel's up and left us,
We're sorry that he's gone;
He was so handy 'round the house
When we needed something done.

Ward, Pa.

Mattie Helen Pressey,

Her funny little giggle,
With the wrinkle on her nose,
Her softly gliding walk,
And her outward turning toes,
Her gently flowing talk,
And the neatness of her clothes,
Make her very well known
To everyone she knows.

Philadelphia, Pa.

William Webb Price,

Moyland, Pa.

Z—Buzz-z-z-z. What! lawn mowers in January? No, just a little device of the barber to relieve Bill of some of his "high grass." Because he had such hair he couldn't wear a Garnet cap in his Freshman year, and consequently he was made to feel that college was a cold, cold lump of ice with tacks in it. But it has thawed out lately and Bill seems to be interested in watching it melt. I hope it doesn't drown him.

Judging from the work he has done for this book, his initials should stand for Writer, Wit, Poet.

Mary Ramsey,

Swarthmore, Pa.

You'd never suspect Mary of being the backbone of various sewing circles and dances among college girls, village girls and the always doubtful mixture. She looks so innocent, and her voice is so soft that she gives the impression of being happy to take everything as she finds it and to ask for no more. If her personality were more frivolous we should be tempted to call her a social butterfly; but, as it is, even now, after an acquaintance of three years, we scarcely have the face to accuse her of it.

Walter A. Reinhard,

Chester, Pa.

Now Reiny there is under-grown,
And maybe under-brained.
Some swear he doesn't know enough
To come in if it rained.
But Walter goes his own sweet way,
And does it without vim.
Some people doubt he lives, but oh!
The difference to him.

Marco Gulio Ricaurte,

Oh! Marco is an Irishman,
Who comes from Ecuador;
And what he knows about the girls
Would fill a book or more.

Riobamba, Ecuador.

He brings them up to every game,
And at their side does prance.
He even sent red roses
To Liz. Bartlett at our dance.

Eleanor Augusta Rittenhouse, H B Φ,

Montclair, N. J.

“Gee, girls, have you heard the latest? Winfield has eloped with a French actress!” “Who’s Winfield?” “Why, don’t you know; he’s a man of mine. Say, you’re there with your flowers! Oh, that’s the kind Winfield used to send me—and Algernon, too—only now he’s dead. Winfield sent me those pink ones I wore to the dance the other night. Wasn’t he dear? Say, let’s have this room a regular Bohemia, and stock up with pretzels and have Peg play her banjo and sing—two strings off, but that makes no difference!”

Byron T. Roberts, J P,

Oh! he’s from the New Jersey border,
Where mosquitoes made him their larder.
His clothes are so neat,
And his manners so sweet,
He’s an animate “Rules of Order.”

Moorestown, N. J.

Harold Stine Roberts,

Moorestown, N. J.

Now isn't this a learned-looking man! Well, he is, anyway. Ask him to look away while I tell you something, for he's a very modest youth, and I wouldn't want him to hear me. He can speak Latin, French, German and I don't know what else—everything but love, I think. He and Jenkins get up in their room and within an hour will have the floor so littered up with Greek nouns, German verbs, French adjectives, Italian pronouns, Spanish adverbs, Esperanto exclamations and (perhaps) Latin slang, that you can't find a space big enough to hold even a good, solid, expressive, English "D——."

Preston T. Roberts, J J,

Moorestown, N. J.

No, little girl, that's not a mattress. It's only Preston's hair. Don't be frightened—it wouldn't even hurt a pat of butter. But isn't Pres. an ugly man! No wonder they sent him away from home. He doesn't phase us, though, because we've seen Weaver and Halsey. In fact, we sort of like to have him around for some reason. He's just like mama's scrubbing board—a plain, old thing, but something that gets work done, and that we wouldn't want to do without.

Alexandra Beatrice Rogers, II B φ,

Corry, Pa.

Prepared for Fun; Junior member of the Verlenden-Rogers-Appleby Combination for Cornering College Capacity for Crazyiness; First Prize in Friend-Winning Contest; President of the Roughhouse Club; Chief Patroness of Booth's Pie Shop; Vice President Emeritus of W. S. G. A.; Leading Lady in Fake Dramatic Club; Organizer of Society for Promotion of Inebriation Among College Women; Awarded Good-Fellow Medal (I, II, III).

Anna Mullin Rogers,

West Chester, Pa.

“Don't you think you had better hurry, Ann?”

“Why?”

“Well, the train leaves in five hours, and I don't want to see you miss it.”

Now five minutes is ample time for most of us to catch a train, but not so for Ann. If she should ever be ready and catch the train by mistake at the last minute, she would leave undone half the things she meant to do.

John Shee Rush, Jr.,

Concordville, Pa.

Oh, here's to you, Johnny-wanny; we all stand firm by you;
You're a poor benighted loafer, but your heart is good and true.
So here's to you, Johnny-wanny, with your happy, tuneful ways,
You aren't a shining mark at all, but you brighten up our days.

Anna Yardley Satterthwaite,

Yardley, Pa.

Wanted—To fill a responsible position. Some one who can do expert typewriting and cooking, is a good student, a hard worker, honest, sober and conscientious; popular with the powers and with a cheery disposition. Apply to Dep't of College Spirit, Swarthmore College.

[Only applicant, Anna Satterthwaite.]

Austin Allan Scott,

Wilmington, Del.

Nickname: Iron Jaw.

Habitat: Chemistry Lab.

Best trait: Keeping quiet.

Aim in life: Not able to discover any.

Temperament: Even.

Noted for: Coming from Delaware College.

Needs most: A good jarring up.

Laurence Price Sharples, M.D.,

Greenhill, Pa.

Dr. Alleman.
Sharples.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

Members of the organic class.

Scene: Organic Laboratory.

Organic class at work.

(Enter Doc. Alleman.)—"Thunder——!!! What 're you making, Sharples?"

Laurie—"Why—a—some—a some stuff from last week."

Doc—"Well, what is it?"

Laurie—"A—a—I put some alcohol and some gray powder, barium something, together and—a—something else and filtered."

Doc.—DID WHAT? ! ? ! ? !

Laurie—"Hey, Ayres, what AM I making?" (A general confusion follows.)

Doc. (to howling assembly).—"Gray powder, barium something or other and something else," and then "what am I doing" to Ayres.

Whew! ! ! ! ! ! !

Helen Shinn,

Atlantic City, N. J.

(Enter Helen, with that light-brown sweater thrown carelessly around her shoulders.)—"O girls, the dancing in the gym has been perfectly great, and Mids Hoadley and I have dropping until we're nearly dead. Now, I've got to go back to my room and rig up some way to keep Appie out. You know he came to visit me the other night, and believe me, he won't come again if I know anything about it."

Carolyn Hallowell Smedley, K A Θ,

Hollywood, Cal.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—Miss Smedley has, at our request, mailed us the facts concerning herself, which we print below.]

She is rather below the average height, dresses stylishly and has a good figure. She takes no interest in things around her. She does not expect to remain at college much longer, as her parents are disgusted with the grade of her work. She has flunked Latin and French, and has been requested by Dr. Miller to retire from Astronomy, because she held back the class. Miss Bates has conditioned her for incorrigible inability. She has been up before the executive committee for night walking. She has few friends and no ability.

[EDITOR'S SECOND NOTE.—As this goes to print we learn that Miss Smedley's letter is totally unreliable, as she is suffering from an acute attack of auto-deprecation.]

Charles Alfred Smith, K Σ,

Philadelphia, Pa.

Pleasing Peg puritanically.
Unweary, upright, unassuming,
Deplorably dawdling dumb.

Sings sentimental suffusions sunnily,
Modestly, may be morbidly, moral;
Impolite, impatient, impetuous,
Tolerably tender. Typically truthful;
Has horrid hair to hoe.

Mabel Lydia Stiner, Π Β Φ,

Kennett Square, Pa.

"Girls, listen. I do think you ought to try to pay your dues. I've been trying to get these class dues for three months, I do believe. Won't you pay, please? And then there's that Student Government assessment. You know we each had to pay for that. Yes, it's ten cents. I hate to bother you so much for money, but they're both for a good cause. Really, I'll not trouble you again. (With a smile, in a soft voice.) Thanks, ever so much." (Leaves, quietly shutting the door.)

Joseph Durbin Stites, $\phi \Sigma K$,

Williamstown, Pa.

This handsome young fellow's called Stites;
His face would put out the lights.

When Doc. Weaver and Joe
Want to go to a show,
They pick out a place where there's tights.

Raymond Clarke Storh, $\phi K T$,

There, little Dutch, don't cry.
You still have Loraine, you know,
And your Pottstown days,
And bachelor ways,
Are things of the long ago.
So there, little Dutch, don't cry.

Pottstown, Pa.

There, little Dutch, don't cry.
Don't care if they tease you so.
You blush so red,
At anything said,
Of Fitchy who likes you, I know.
So there, little Dutch, don't cry.

Ida Dorothy Storde, $HB \phi$,

West Chester, Pa.

"Say, Dot, don't you have time to make candy this afternoon?" " 'Deed, I don't. I have to go to the laboratory till five o'clock." "Come on and eat! You go every day of the week." "No, I have my mind made up, and you can't change it. I'm going to work." So off to the Stiff, and when finals are over and grades come out, Dot's strength of mind has its reward.

Edith Neal Swayne,

West Chester, Pa.

I'll tell you everything I can,
There's too much to relate.
I heard a very striking girl,
Talk in a deep debate.
"Who are you, striking girl," I said.
"You look so very strong."
"My name is Edith Swayne," she said;
"And I'm here to right the wrong."

Thomas Rothwell Taylor, K Σ;

Swarthmore, Pa.

Got any "dope" ready for the HALCYON meeting Monday night? You haven't? Well get to work. We've got to have a good meeting. Me? Well I haven't very much myself. You see I had to write most of that Phoenix this month. I've a few of those little tricks with quick endings and some "What made——" and "Why is——" with somebody's name on the end. You know what I mean. Darn it, I love those things. By the way, have you seen anything of my girl? I want to see her before the game starts.

Charles Garrett Thatcher, Φ Σ K.

Swarthmore, Pa.

Whenever you are all mixed up and feelin' sick o' men,
Just go to old Charles Scarrett and he'll fix you up again.
You'd think him just a slow old cuss, with no chance at all for fame,
But he's mighty fine to have around, he's always just the same.

Edith Freeman Tracy, // B Φ, Glyndon, Md.

She was just ready to start for the train—her hundred-trip ticket in her hand—when I paused and bade her tell the story of her life. She adjusted her chic Parisian hat and began: “I am from the country—born and raised on a farm. When I landed here I certainly was a rare freshman, but I’ve learned a great deal since—believe me.” “Are you fond of study?” “No, indeed, but take it from me I’ve been working this year. Do you like society?” But with a dazzling smile she apologized and hurried off—leaving me charmed with her sweet face and pleasant way; but she does use slang.

Natalie Sudler Turner,

Asbury Park, N. J.

Natalie is not one of those insipid personalities that Jane Austin seeks and the write-up member of the HALCYON staff avoids. You can slam her about anything, including:

Slamming other people—firmly and not gently.

Borrowing—anything in Parrish.

Talking—(no comment necessary).

Jollyng—ask Dr. Goddard, he’ll tell you Miss Turner has unusually bright ideas.

Cutting—Everything from collection to cake.

Fussing—the poor masculine members of her table.

Cooking—fudge to cream chicken with borrowed or stolen materials.

Take your choice, and if you also want some real good fun, don’t forget Natalie. (You’re not likely to.)

Evalynn Walker,

Media, Pa.

The junior who is just beginning to wear her hair up, who does her Wednesday’s lessons on Monday and her Thursday’s lessons on Tuesday, who doesn’t care for dances but has a good time at them all the same, who insists upon grace before feeds, and who never loafs except when she is eating her lunch and then she reads; who always carries her books in a little suit case, the space inside of which is almost filled with her lunch (honest).

Helen Motz Weaver,

Aldan, Pa.

Have you ever heard of Aldan? Have you ever seen a fair, diminutive maiden, staggering down the asphaltum loaded with two suit cases and a white muff? Well, that is Helen, bound for the illustrious city above mentioned. Is there a man at the bottom of it, we wonder, or is it just a simple case of starvation?

Warren Wallace Weaver, $\phi \Sigma K$,

Winning winsome women,
Eating enormously everywhere,
Attempting automobilism,
Valued vagary vagabond,
Ever evading erudition,
Raising rough riots 'round room.

Herman Elliott Wells,

Nottingham, Pa.

"Say, Ellicut, got your mechanics done?"

"Great balls of fire, no! I read it over, but Professor Lilly will wait awhile for those problems, methinks. Sit down, though, and maybe we can worry 'em out together. I'll see if Charley Smith has any extra chairs, if not I'll take one anyway. Take this one. I've got some pears in the closet there if you want any. No? All right. I sorter like the things myself.

"Hi, there, Hollow! What can I do for you? Nothing? Well, don't go away mad and swear you haven't been here.

"What do you think of this picture I drew for surveying? Pretty classy, ain't her? As soon as I get that pretty little title up there in the off corner it will be a bird, as sure as the devil made little oysters. The boss 'll give me an A in that yet."

Philadelphia, Pa.

Anne Deborah White, K I O,

Lansdowne, Pa.

A TOAST.

Come fill up a bumper of lemonade,
And drink with us now to the health of a maid,
Who is jolly and clever and literar-ee,
And works for us all like the famed busy bee.

Martha Willets, K K I,

Trenton, N. J.

Captain of 1912 Hockey Team; President of the Woman's Suffrage League, anything that requires some one that has energy and is willing to use it. "Why! I don't think thee ought to say things like that about me. People won't have the faintest idea of whom thee's talking." Yes, they will, Martha, it'll be labeled. We can't afford to take any chances on thy missing the point.

Football

LAST fall's team was not one of those world's champion teams of 1906 or 1907 that could make Lafayette and Ursinus feel like prep schools, and could humble the University of Pennsylvania. It did not have the capital invested in it. The nucleus was not a squad of hired stars—it was green men bequeathed us by that year of "No Football." But Coach Brooke and Captain Eberle built up a team by the end of the year that Swarthmore was proud of. They had some bad games—alumni turned on them—and they had a stony row to hoe. But they hoed it. Those last games were not walkovers, but they were victories. And if you were here "Bucknell Night" you know how Swarthmore felt toward her football team. Captain Gieg will have eight old men for his team next year, and everyone of them plays clean football.

LADIES and gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure to introduce to you Swarthmore's latest debutant. In 1909 we made her acquaintance. In 1910 she makes her formal bow to our society. Allow me to present our baseball team. We welcome her gladly into the restricted circle of Swarthmore favorites and pray for her brilliant future, for she possesses that attraction which claims our hearts and renders us henceforth her slave.

Like the true Swarthmorean that she is, on her first trip she has captivated the gallant South. Her society for the coming year is in great demand there, not only by those who have met her, but by those who know her fame. Near home her success has been even greater. On bended knee before her shrine are the pick of our northern "400." Proud Pennsylvania herself bows in respect, for "never has Shultz had such a batting on Franklin Field." The lesser lights in numbers crave her slightest favor.

Doubtless you are surprised that one so young should achieve such wonderful, such complete success. Let me refer you to her excellent sponsor, Coach Weymouth, a good fellow, a rare gentleman and a wonderful coach with all; and to her loyal and devoted servants, the members of her retinue. Let us wish her Godspeed and future prosperity.

Lacrosse

WITH but five of the previous year's twelve lacrosse men in college, and with a brand new coach and coaching system being tried out, Swarthmore trounced Johns Hopkins 16 to 3, ran off with the United States championship and came within two points of being champions of America. That is the story of last spring. But this year there are nine of that championship team ready for business, the ex-captain among them. Coach Whitehead, who produced that championship team, is down again from Canada, and about thirty-five men are making each other hustle for positions on the team.

Now if you cannot see that Hopkins banner trodden in the dust and the American championship resting with Captain Perkins and his men, you must have dust in your eyes.

Basketball

NO apologies for this team. They trounced everything in sight—and Pennsylvania was particularly visible. Every man on the team was a star—this counted for a good bit. But if you could have seen them in the second half of the Penn State game—four points behind and everybody feeling kind of funny—then a goal was shot, the crowd started to cheer, and the team caught the spirit. It went through every man. Up and down the floor at lightning speed they went. Tooth and nail they went at it. State was dumbfounded. And when the bell rang, and State recovered, they found their half of the score nine points shy.

This thing happened every game. The spirit would run from man to man like wildfire, and no team could stop them. Penn was helpless before them.

That's what made our basketball team. It was a squad of spirited stars who played an absolutely clean game.

Track

The track record of one meet won, one tied and two lost does not sound good; but in reality the team has never been heard from before like last year.

A track coach was procured, and while Mr. Palmer was on the field there was no rest for the weary. Every afternoon, every man was out working in dead earnest. And as a result records were broken right and left. The relay team won a wonderful race at the Penn relays, lowering the record from $3.30\frac{2}{5}$ to $3.28\frac{2}{5}$.

Captain Bradford lowered Baker's half-mile record to 1.57 4-5. Lewis broke the freshman mile record, and Phipps raised his last year's vault of eleven feet by six inches.

As would be expected, our own class took honors at the Phoenix cup sports with lots and lots to spare. The medal for the man doing the most phenomenal work of the day went to Gilchrist—at least the honor went to him—the medal has not been heard from.

The spring prospects could not be brighter, and Captain Hess should turn out an excellent team. Every good man is back, except Lewis; Eberle may hurdle for us, and a couple of promising Freshmen are running around the field with their negligé breeches on.

Extracts from Interview with Appie

Yes, sir, I'm Apparition C. B. Nun, called Appie outside the classroom. No relation to Dr. Appleton, though I'm very fond of that photograph of him standing on the station roof in Collection Hall. I was recommended to come here by your President, just to see that everything is running smoothly, you know. I met him in the Catty Combs.

What were my first impressions? Look here, young man, if you're one of those muck-raking, mud-slinging Phoenix—oh, Er-Ohm-Traws? Old rival of mine —rather cut me out, but I'll turn my other molar bone.

Well, yes, I was rather disappointed at first. Joseph had mentioned the dome. I got off the train and looked around, then blinked my lachrymals. Off to the left was a thing as shiny as Dr. Hoadley's head and the color of Ruth Sharp's hair. (Yes, I've learned the names of a few of the leading characters.) I looked up a wide, straight path to a long, gray building on top of the hill with three humps on it, and a black keg placed square on the top of the right side, labeled 1914 in white. I supposed the meaning to be that the class is tanked.

I followed the path, since it seemed to be the only direction you could go, climbed several flights of stairs (placed there, I've since learned, to give students an appetite for potatoes) and pushed open the door at the top. I will omit a description of the odor that greeted me, as books of poems have been written on the subject. I staggered onto a leather bench and moaned. It slid me off promptly and remarked: "I am the Pet. If you're not waiting for some one to go into the dining room, get off!" A door was open from which came the mixed sounds of a feeding poultry yard and a ladies' afternoon tea. I stepped inside. Shades of Prexy, it was raining water, snowing bread and hailing chocolates in there! It was really a pretty sight to see how adept those young men were in catching food in their mouths. Suddenly they all began hissing and there was a silence that jarred the small bones of my ear. A voice on the other side of the room—I think it was a colored man—said: "The'e 'll be a regula meetin' ob dee men's glee club in Some'ville Hall tu-night at seben-thuty." Everyone laughed and tinkled their glasses, and a lady at the end of the room looked worried.

My first night was a pleasant one. I picked up several souvenirs for my memory book, including Therese Spackman's watch, the logical outlines of three Freshmen, Ruth Verlenden's soap and Clara Frazee's long, blue coat. Before breakfast I took a walk and met an active little lady with blonde, Grecian hair on the Campus. She slammed her heels together and shouted: "Arms - upwards - stretch - sideways - fling - with - outward - turning - of - palms - and - deep- breathing - one - two - three-ee - four. Louder, louder, I can't hear you at all." That sounded queer to me and I fled. I tried to go upstairs, but girls were hurling themselves down like a keg rush. Each would stop by the bulletin board a minute and sort of pat another one, remarking, "I didn't get up till the grace bell, and I never hurried so in my life," and then walk slowly into the dining room.

Well, I didn't go into breakfast that morning, but I did attend Collection, as Joseph had particularly requested me to. I felt it to be a very beautiful occasion—all those fresh young faces meeting with the Dean, Dr. Hoadley, Dr. Battin, Mr. Alexander and the chairs on the platform. First we had an inspiring hymn about "A pair a dice, a pair a dice, who does not long for rest?" I was pleased to note the tense fervor and spirit with which all sang, pouring out their very souls in the words until a lad—Steve, by name—in the back of the room hit a soaring note that made even Miss Cunningham's picture frown in pain. A very handsome gentleman next read letters from the Founders of the College on "Their Impressions from Below of the Twenty-Ninth of Last Eleventh Month." After announcements that the Y. M. C. A., the Equal Suffrage League and the Aero Club would hold meetings at 7.15 in Collection Hall the students were dismissed.

I will not try to tell you of many more of the sights that have interested me. Among the things of which your College may be justly proud I might mention the beautiful pictures hung along the stairways, the ham-omelette carpet on Collection platform, Russ Perkins' piano legs as displayed in basketball clothes, your efficient cut system, in which, as I understand it, the number of cuts varies directly as the nerve of the individual and inversely as the gullibility of the professor, the nine bells and one whistle which rent the air space between 6.45 and 7.45 A. M., and the corn-meal muffins for breakfast Monday and Thursday mornings.

Only a word of advice and criticism. Watch with care the growth of your latest eating club—the Consumers' League—or it will engulf you alive. Preserve the harmony, the unity, of your college at all costs. Do not allow the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. to meet on a dark night in the Alumni Room. Keep the Monks and Devils apart, unless Miss Lukens and Father Time are there to separate them. Keep the G. I. K., D. A. S., P. I. G., T. G., T. M., D. B. D. and M. I. K.'s in a card catalogue and do not mix them on the shelves. And above all, my boy, oh, take warning, keep Miss Baker out of the Biology Lab.

The Boy and His Pony

A boy was cleaning out his desk in Old South Wharton and he found a little grimy quarter. "What," said he, "shall I do with this little grimy quarter? I will go to town and buy a little pony." As he was coming home, Michael's gate was down and the pony would not jump over. He went a little further and he met Michael. So he said to Michael:

"Mike, Mike, beat the pony;
Pony won't jump over gate;
And I won't pass my exam. to-morrow."

But Michael would not. He went a little further and he met Doc Alleman. So he said:

“Doe, Doe, swear at Mike;
Mike won’t beat pony;
Pony won’t jump over gate;
And I won’t pass my exams. to-morrow.”

But Doc Alleman would not! He went a little further and he met Dean Meeteer. So he said:

“Dean, Dean, smile at Doe;
Doe won’t swear at Mike;
Mike won’t beat pony;
Pony won’t jump over gate;
And I won’t pass my exam. to-morrow.”

But the Dean would not! He went a little further and he met Tod Eberle. So he said:

“Tod, Tod, fuss Dean;
Dean won’t smile at Doe;
Doe won’t swear at Mike;
Mike won’t beat pony;
Pony won’t jump over gate;
And I won’t pass my exam. to-morrow.”

But Tod would not. He went a little further and he met Nan. So he said:

“Nan, Nan, sing to Tod;
Tod won’t fuss Dean;
Dean won’t smile at Doe;

Doe won’t swear at Mike;
Mike won’t beat pony;
Pony won’t jump over gate;
And I won’t pass my exam. to-morrow.”

But Nan would not. He went a little further and he met Iva. So he said:

“Iva, Iva, play for Nan;
Nan won’t sing to Tod;
Tod won’t fuss Dean;
Dean won’t smile at Doe;
Doe won’t swear at Mike;
Mike won’t beat pony;
Pony won’t jump over gate;
And I won’t pass my exam. to-morrow.”

But Iva said, “If you will buy a copy of “Lucky ‘13” I will play for Nan to sing.” And he said he would. And as soon as the boy handed out the necessary cash—

Iva began to play for Nan;
Nan began to sing to Tod;
Tod began to fuss the Dean;
Dean began to smile at Doe;
Doe began to swear at Mike;
Mike began to beat the pony;
The pony in a fright jumped over the gate;
And so the boy passed his exam. the next day.

Fauna and Flora of Swarthmore

The Serics Dance is a serpent closely allied to the beaux-constrictor. It has the power of charming its prey with its enticing appearance until they are powerless to withdraw. It almost captured and destroyed Bryan and has eaten alive one active drama. It appears spasmodically upon Saturday night, hunts mercilessly for a few hours and creeps away into its lair early Sunday morning. For further information concerning its habits see Helen Parker.

The Last Breakfast Bell is the most obnoxious of a large family of annoying pests that invade our bedrooms early in the day. It is closely related to the bedbug. Its sting is peculiarly penetrating, and acts as a violent stimulant, or, more rarely, as a narcotic.

The Novel Course is a new germ, introduced, like so many other nuisances, by the English sparrow. It produces a painful disease, attacking the cerebral tissues and causing acute inflammation, fever and cold feet. Fortunately constant exercise and an antidote of thyme will generally tide the patient over the crisis.

Fussing is a showy flower closely related to Love-in-the-Mist. It springs up all over the Campus with the advent of warm weather. It seldom bears fruit and has no known use, but because of its odd forms it arouses general interest. Some horticulturists claim that it spoils the beauty of the green sward, and are vainly trying to eradicate it.

Genius is a common weed, introduced from Wilmington, which has just begun to gain a foothold here. It buds early in the year of 1913 and makes rank growth before it can be eradicated by the Faculty. It is most vigorous on the Ivy and the Open Länder, where it is characteristically green and fresh, bearing abundant fruit, but traces have been found in other locations, though the growth elsewhere is generally spindling and recumbent.

Mabel Stiner (in zoölogical lab.)—"What are you working on, Edith?"

Edith Swayne—"I'm on a bat."

Dr. Holmes—"Is there anything we have known forever?"

Jenkins—"Not yet."

February 9th

SPECIAL TO ER-OMH-TRAWS

One of the most popular social events of the season was the supper given by the smart set of Swarthmore, the proceeds to be devoted to the advancement of coeducation among the obscure peoples of foreign tables.

Between courses, the guests enjoyed a novel and exciting game just introduced from Paris, the purpose of which is to hit without aim an unknown mark with spheres of dampened paper, globules of bread or pits of cherries. Merriment ran riot, even the patroness enjoying the receipt of a lump of sugar upon her head.

Miss Georgiana Boughton, one of the most charming debutantes of this season, was introduced by Mrs. Lukens, under whose patronage so many young people have entered society. This charming bud created quite a sensation, and was surrounded by a circle of admirers during the entire evening.

Miss Kudlieb, one of the most popular of the younger set, was brought in by Mr. Wickham.

Gaskill—"The alarm clock went off."

Trumpie (sleepily)—"Good! I hope it never comes back."

Perhaps the most vivacious group was that gathered at Miss Verlenden's table, where a delightful cold lunch was served. Miss Verlenden, whose name is so well known in society columns, with that naïve gayety for which she is famous, distributed favors among her guests with a lavish hand.

At the table of one of the patronesses were Miss Cadwallader and Mr. Watson. Unfortunately Mr. Watson was forced to leave town early on business, but Miss Cadwallader, with that attractive vivacity for which she is well known, ably bridged over the gap.

Miss Wray was present in a black velvet gown of the latest slimness cut, lightened here and there by touches of rare old Valenciennes lace.

Miss Francis Willard Pancoast was prominent in a close-fitting suit of slender cut, completed by a manish linen waist, with stiff linen collar and black necktie. Her hair was arranged simply and becomingly, with the part a trifle on the left side.

Miss Early—"What do you have to-day, Miss Kellar?"

Betty—"A cold."

Letter from President Swain to Dr. Hoadley

AT THE TIME OF THE FORMER'S LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

DEAR GEORGE:

While I am on shipboard I will utilize some of my spare time in jotting down for you some of your duties. I cannot remember them all, but here are a few of your ex-officio ones:

- I. Lending money to broke professors.
- II. Passing the plate for various causes.
- III. Seeing that the Clothiers fill it.
- IV. Playing tennis and walking.
 - (a) With Dr. Miller for sport.
 - (b) With the others for diplomacy.

V. Procuring universal coöperation.
(It is sometimes necessary to do this with an ax.)
Among your official duties are the following:

- I. Interviewing students.
 - (a) Denworth (because you have to).
 - (b) Eherle (because he is used to it).
 - (c) Delaplaine (because he likes it).
- II. Soft soaping.
 - (a) Glad handing the Glad Handers.
 - (b) To act as if you knew a student from a gardener or a waitress.
- III. Writing letters to everyone, from Isaac to parents who are afraid Willie has caught cold.

IV. Officiating over college affairs.

- (a) Hot air to alumni and friends.
- (b) With parents.
 - (1) Look wise and talk highbrow.
 - (2) Pose as a prominent Quaker church worker. (Keep Ducky in the background.)

V. Raising the standard.

Watch this carefully, for alumni often take it into their heads to stop around with their little foot rules.

These are only a few of your duties; Miss Alderfer can probably tell you the rest.

One more word of advice—don't hesitate to give the students and professors h——. They thrive on it. It is the Freshmen's and Dr. Alleman's chief delight. Besides it gets rid of your surplus steam; you won't have to lick Anthony. Take it out on such roughnecks as the Monks or Devils.

Above all, keep your opera glass on the coin.

With best regards to Alec. and John Miller, and wishing you a pleasant presidentship, I am

Yours sincerely,

JOE SWAIN.

Acts

I

And eastward from that land where dwell the sons of Belial is a land flowing with milk and honey.¹

And the name of that land is called Pair-ish,² for it was there that the king of that country appointed an altar.

And Har-Per, one of the daughters of the land, did evil in the sight of the king, even defiled she the robe of the high priestess—and it came to pass on the seventeenth day after her sinning that a great darkness fell upon that land,

And an angel of the Lord, enveloped in a cloud,³ and carrying in his hand a long staff, appeared unto the people, crying:

“Turn out your lights: the gas house is on fire.”

And immediately a great terror fell upon the women, and they seized what garments they might lay their hand upon, and gat them to the city of refuge whose name is called Al-cove,⁴ crying aloud upon the name of the Lord.

² Heb., A place for the making of matches.

³ Obscure, may be beard.

⁴ A meeting place of two persons.

And presently came unto them a messenger from the high priestess, saying that the king was angry because of their much speaking, yet they ceased not to wail and pray.

And it came to pass that a second messenger arrived, saying: “Verily it is the truth that she has said unto you. The high priestess is indeed wroth and desires you to return to your homes, and bind up your hair, and don your garments.”

Then spake Nat Ali,⁵ she who speaks not after the manner of women, and said:

“Aw gwan, she’s kiddin’ us!” And straightway all of the women fell upon the ground and were smitten with an ague.

II

And it came to pass that, in the day of rejoicing,⁶ a great multitude assembled in the plain called Camp-Us, to do honor to their king.

And the people said, “Lo, we will make a joyful noise unto our lord with timbrels⁷ and the voices of our young men and maidens." And immediately there arose a tumult of great rejoicing.

And they went forth to meet him, and brought him in honor^s to his house, and praised him.

Then one of the wise men said unto him, "Seest thou not, O king, how thy servants have waxed lean with labor and long fasting?" And the king looked upon them and saw that it was so, and sorrow was strong in his heart. And he blessed the people, saying, "Behold I will command that a feast be prepared unto you and I will set aside a day in which ye shall neither labor nor do any work."

And the people rejoiced, crying: "Hip-Hip! Hip-Hip! Hip-Hip!" after the manner of that tribe.

Thus it was brought about as it was spoken by the prophet:

"The return of a king shall be as a sweet savor in the mouths of his people."

Swarthmore Talk

Have you heard the questions the gossips ask

Of the students out at Swarthmore?

They say they're up to many a prank

And their questions, I know, reach a score.

Now these are the things that they want to know,

And perhaps you'll clear up the dark.

They say: "Why under the sun does Jack Reid?

And what does make Ruth Sharp?

What sad event made Constance Ball?

Where is it Anna Haslitt?

What marvelous load does Thomas Hall?

Does Laura Parry 'cause she's it?

And Mary A. Cordingly's willing to tell

What 'twas that made Marian Stearn.

Did you see John Rush when Kathryn Fell?

If you didn't you've something to learn.

They say that fright it turned John White,

It may have turned Grace Green;

They say that Trude Wood have come if she could,

But she was nowhere to be seen.

To see Edward Caum made Annabelle Boyle,

And Rose Avery bit of strength lost;

And Helen Herr dignity had to quite spoil

To hear Wharton Carroll across."

And all this was caused by the slip of a foot,

At least that is what they all say;

If you don't know how to stand on your feet,

There is hope and an E. Z. Way.

Swarthmore Alphabet

A is for Asphaltum

Down the Campus green.

It never knew a poster

Of the Class 1913.

Ambling Asphaltum.

B is for College Bells

That always make us hurry ;

We always dress upon the stair,

The training table's such a worry !

Bothersome Bells.

C is for the Campus

That stretcheth to the track.

And after it has reached it

It turns and stretches back.

Curious Campus.

D is for the Danees

We're having in the Gym.

You ought to see the fussers

Go at it with a vim.

Dusty Danees.

E we get for flunk marks,

'Bout that we've small to say ;

Just wait until you get one—

'Twill be a bitter day.

Endless E's.

F is for the Faculty,

Who pile us high with work ;

When they were studes in college,

Did they really never shirk ?

Fibbing Faculty.

G is for gymnasties,

To keep us well and strong ;

And if we never cut it

We'll live just twice as long.

Gymnastics, Gee !

H is for Professor Hayes,

Swarthmore's famous bard ;

We wish he'd look more cheerful,

And not take it quite so hard.

Hilarious Hayes.

I is for Infirmary,

Where they put us when we're sick;
And for the sake of good beef steak
We stick and stick and stick.
Infirmary Ills.

J is for our Jumpers,

Which are our pride and joy;
They're not so bad when on a girl;
But oh! when on a boy!
Jaunty Jumpers.

K is for those fiendish Kats

We have up in the lab;
They never had Miss Bates' gym.,
The way their muscels flab.
Kept Kats.

L is for the Library,

Where fussing is no more;
Cupid shivers on the steps,
And Hayes he shuts the door.
Loveless Library.

M is for Doc Miller,

Bless his dear old heart;
If ever you are down and out
He'll help you get a start.
Marvelous Miller.

N is for New Wharton,

Where we neither smoke nor chew;
If there weren't locks upon the doors,
Whatever would we do!
Neighborly New Wharton.

O is for Observatory,

Which once was Prexy's home;
Inside there is a telescope,
But outside there's a dome.
Obstrusive Observatory.

P is for the college Pet,

It's been there many a year;
The girls still hate to pass it:
What is it that they fear?
Perilous Pet.

Q is for the quiet hour

We have in Parrish Hall;
At 3 A. M. it's very still,
But before that, not at all.
Questionable Quiet.

R is for recitation,

Which makes us grant and puff;
In some we are quite honest,
But most are on the bluff.
Rotten Recitation.

S is for the whole darn Staff
That wrote this book for you;
Don't criticise the work too hard
Till you have read it through.
Sterling Staff.

T is for our water Tank.
It is a lovely sight,
Since naughty Freshmen boys
Painted it one night.
Tasty Tank.

U is for U people
For whom the work was done;
It took a heap of thinking,
But it was lots of fun.
Uninitiated U.

V is for the Varsity;
In every game we play
We always show a noble front
And always win the day.
Valiant Varsitys.

X, Y and Z are all the things
That we by chance have missed;
We'll leave them for the next year's staff
To gather in a list.

A Distant College Tune

She was a pretty college girl,
In scarlet evening cloak;
Her cheeks were rose, her hair was dusk,
Her eyes would gods evoke.
They sat out on the campus
In a starry night in June,
And silently they listened
To a distant college tune.

They would graduate to-morrow
After four long years of joy;
And they both felt very tearful,
This Senior girl and boy.
Her lower lip was trembling,
He stilled it pretty soon;
Then silently they listened
To a distant college tune.

Jake and Rudie at the Table

You must imagine that while this dialogue is taking place Jake and Rudie are rolling around in their chairs convulsed with laughter; Jake with both hands over his stomach rocking to and fro, while Rudie bends over his plate shaking all over. The rest of the people at the table, when they are not too weak with laughter, engage themselves in throwing bread, etc., at the offenders.

Rudie—"Jake, why is a clown like your glass of water?"

Jake—"Because he's a 'tumbler'?"

Rudie—"No, because he can 'spring' well."

Jake—"Well, I'm glad I 'pumped' that out of you."

Rudie—"You saw it then, did you?"

Jake—"I saucer."

Rudie—"Oh! 'salt' that joke down!"

Jake—"Where, in the 'cellar'?"

Natalie—"Dr. Goddard, would you rather marry Goneril or Regan?"

Dr. G. (between spasms of giggling)—"He! he! I'd wish—he! hee!—I—(gurgles) were a Mormon."

Rudie—"Yea, you'd 'butter.'"

Jake—"Here, you're too 'vin-eager' to make a joke."

Rudie—"Oh, that's 'oil' right."

Jake—"Well, 'ladle' some more out then."

Rudie—"Wait a minute, and I'll 'fork' another out."

Jake—"When you get it, 'pitcher' over."

Rudie—"You know I can do those in my sleep. Yes, even when I 'nap-I-kin.'"

Jake—"Tea-hee, tea-hee."

Rudie—"I thought your 'cocoa'-nut was too 'milky' to see that."

Jake—"Well, it did make me 'cof'-fee."

Rudie—"Oh, put some 'pepper' in these puns."

Jake—"That's 'mustard' (most hard) to do."

Rudie—"That's a 'chair' ful one."

By this time Jake is rolling in agony and holding up his napkin ring he groans, "Oh, ring off!"

Dr. Goddard—"I am rendered ill by the arguments of these radical suffragists."

Ruth V. (repentant)—"Do you s'pose he means I make him sick?"

Who Kissed Miss Lukens?

Who kissed Miss Lukens?

“I, Pious Phipps,
With my rosy lips,
I kissed Miss Lukens.”

Who saw her cry?

“I, Biggity Bye,
With my eagle eye,
I saw her cry.”

Who caught her tears?

“I, Friendly Fox,
In my collar box,
I caught her tears.”

Who heard her call?

“I, Helpful Hall,
Right through the wall,
I heard her call.”

Who smoothed her hair?

“I, Wary Ware,
I didn’t care,
I smoothed her hair.”

Who washed her face?

“I, Polite Pace,
I did it with grace,
I washed her face.”

Who told the Dean?

“I, Grieving Green,
Although it was mean,
I told the Dean.”

Who got the blame?

“Me, Delaplaine,
Dey tink I’m insane,
So I got the blame.”

And so she was kissed,
Though they say that Phipps missed.

Co-education

A Fresh he was and he made his vow
 (Even as you and I)
That he had no use for a girl nohow;
We told him that he'd see differently now,
But the Fresh he spoke of them all as "cow"
 (Even as you and I).

A Soph he is and his roll he spends
 (Even as you and I);
Notes and candy and flowers he sends,
And all his bad habits he carefully mends,
All for the sake of "one of those hens"
 (Even as you and I).

And it isn't the laugh and it isn't the chaff
 That stings like a bumble bee;
It's the coming to see what an ass he had been,
When the damsels smiled on the Freshman green,
 And the darned fool didn't see.

How do you make a HALCYON?
They look so easy when they're done?
Well, first you must elect a staff;
Two to work, the rest to laugh.
Then you schedule clubs and classes;
Collect good slams on lads and lasses;
Ring in the "dear old cherry tree";
Dig from your poetic brain
Verse that limps as if in pain.
Some alleged funny, others slush—
This "Good-by-dear-old-Swarthmore" mush.
Let some sparkling efforts be Directed at the Faculty.
Get some ads to pay the cost,
Else your dod-blamed book is lost.
Print it, and to the vulgar horde
Disperse it, and then thank the Lord
That you have filled your HALCYON,
That looks so easy when it's done.

We love our Doctor Fussel—
 His figure is so trim.
We love to see his pretty face,
 And watch his "toofies" swim.

Flunked

We entered together as Freshmen,
And roomed together, you see;
We played on the team together,
And made one fraternity;
We majored in engineering,
As "pilgrims" we weren't so slow;
But he's to the bad in his studies,
And they say that he must go.

I remember the night when together,
Disguised from our heads to our toes,
We drove every Sophomore from Wharton
By dexterous use of the hose.
I remember I sprained my ankle,
And he carried me home through the snow;
But now he's flunked out in his Conics,
And they say that he must go.

The nights that we raided the kitchen,
Just taking whatever we could!
The nights that we stole Durnall's chickens,
And cooked them down in the wood!
The nights that we lay on the campus,
A-singing soft and low;
And now he's been dropped out of English,
And they say that he must go.

Why can't they keep him a little,
And give him another show?
If only Prexy could see him—
Could know the man that I know!
I guess you think he deserves it,
And perhaps you are right; but oh!
We wanted to finish together,
And now, good Lord! he must go.

Amendments to the Constitution of the Women's Student Government Association

RULES AND REGULATIONS, 1911

Young women students must not climb the water tank unless attended by a chaperone approved by the Dean.

Young women students are forbidden to converse with young men on the west or north sides of the water tank.

Requirements for a chaperone are as follows:

- (1) She shall have graduated nine years previously from Swarthmore College.
- (2) She shall know how to knit or crochet.
- (3) She shall wear no unnecessary ornaments or additions to her hair.
- (4) She must not be able to walk from Parrish to the station in less than ten minutes. (Try-outs superintended by Miss Baker.)

Students are requested not to practice declamation during morning Collection. Silent study, writing or conversation in low tones only is permitted.

Walks through the Crum woods must be made in groups of not less than one, or not more than one and a boy.

Classes are forbidden to hold picnics on the Wallingford bridge, in Walton's coal bin or in the library tower.

Sleep-walking on the ledge is prohibited.

Young women students who confiscate property while asleep are requested to return it during their waking hours.

Only Freshmen and Sophomores with a general average of less than C are required to sleep on the roof.

Young women students may under no circumstances look on, over, or at the west campus or any object that may be superimposed thereon.

Students are forbidden to count the chimes during Dr. Hull's classes.

All young women students are urged to come in out of the woods during heavy rain or sleet storms or when the thermometer registers 10° C. at 8 p. m.

Young women may not coast or toboggan on the observatory dome unless they have a special letter from parent or guardian assuming all responsibility.

Young women may not dance on the campus with the young men during outdoor social hour unless provided with overshoes approved by the Dean.

They're Dancing on the Campus in the Evening

"What makes the Dean's brow look so grave?"

Said Fresh on parade.

"They're dancing on the campus now."

The sportive Junior said.

"Oh! They're waltzing in the girl's gym.; you can hear the music play.

Ben Battin is a-beating time, for Prexy is away;
They cannot rest with twice a week; they do it every day.

They're dancing on the campus in the evening."

"Tell me, does Hoadley give a hoot?"

Said Fresh on parade.

"Not so that you could notice it,"

The snappy Junior said.

"And Fauver does not mind it, if you get to bed by nine;

Ducky has not come to one, but still he thinks they're fine;

But Robbie, he is shocked to death; he thinks they're serving wine,

While they're dancing on the campus in the evening."

"What is that merry burst of sound?"

Said Fresh on parade.

"That is the Clothier orchestra,"

The wise guy Junior said.

"Morris endowed the music, garnet uniforms and all.
They have classes for beginners up in old Collection
Hall;

And Miss Lukens and Prof. Hayes will lead the grand Commencement Ball;

Oh! They're dancing on the campus in the evening."

THE CLOTHIER ORCHESTRA

Apologies to Alfie

Ask me no more; when I for long have scanned
The verses in the Phoenix and have tried
To find some thought there, and have been denied—
Impaired my brain in vain to understand;
Ask me no more.

Ask me no more; when I have gone with you
Each evening to the city for a term,
Then at exam time hear in accents firm
The Faculty predict I won't get through;
Ask me no more.

Ask me no more; when I with you have fed
At luncheon on the bash of old Swarthmore,
And foolishly have passed my plate for more,
Then find a hair from some one's lovely head;
Ask me no more.

When Pearson Reads

When Pearson reads, Doc Trotter frowns,
And says, "We hear more foolish sounds
From whistles to a cat's last waul,
But honest that's the worst of all.
It's funny we can't talk in peace
Without this imitation Keith's,
When Pearson reads."

When Pearson reads, the students all
Unite in wonder in the hall;
And Ducky seems to go insane;
While Hull and Battin grin in pain.
But Pearson's class sit back in peace;
They love this imitation Keith's,
When Pearson reads.

Consistency

Said the student: "This world is a mess,
But when I'm through college, I guess

I will change the whole raft that is now run by graft

And my presence the country will bless."

(And he dropped in his ballot for personal reasons.)

Said he, "The masses don't think,
They follow the bosses and blink

At the most lurid facts, overlooking the cracks,
And in comfortable ignorance sink."

(Then he turned to his neighbor, who had been trying to get his attention, and said: "Aw, don't talk to me about college reform. I guess we're all right.")

Said another, "This front hall's a mess;
If I were a man, I just guess

I'd clear off the Pet, and the girls I would let Disentangle themselves from the press."

(Then she went into the post office with a mob of girls and stayed until the mail was out.)

Said she, "This Duckie's a pill!
The beliefs he advances would kill

My pious old parents, and his talk never warrants
That it should be charged on my bill."

(So she cheated in Bible exam. and so proved Duckie's bad influence.)

At the Lecture

She had studied all day without ceasing.

She went to a lecture each night,

Where—

She nodded her head in approval

And shaded her eyes from the light.

The lecturer may have been splendid,

He may have been wrong or been right;

But—

She nodded her head in approval.

And shaded her eyes from the light.

And after he said his conclusion,

And everyone else said good night;

Still—

She nodded her head—in approval,

And shaded her eyes from the light.

I WONDER WHY

Parrish isn't ventilated.
Professor Robinson looks like that.
Soyars talks.
Redfield doesn't smoke.
Miss Meeteer hasn't noticed Katherine's switch.
Biology students don't care for oatmeal.
The Seniors never wear caps and gowns.

Little drops of garlic,
Little grains of paste,
Make our Sunday ice cream,
And that awful taste.

ODE TO THE "DEAR OLD CRUM"

Roll on, red Crum, roll on!
In all your colored filthiness
Roll on!
What though you smell of H₂S?
What though the dye has killed the fish?
What though you cannot wash a dish?
What though to swim we kind of wish?
Don't give a hoot!
Roll on!

Miss Early (illustrating gestures in declamation)—
"If a thing is horrible we force it back with one hand—so; and if it is very horrible we recoil, putting up both hands."

"Birdie" Flick (aside)—"And if it's still more horrible we call a policeman."

OVERHEARD AT DR. MILLER'S

George (a new gardener)—"Is this the conservatory?"

Eva (the maid)—"Yes, this is where they keep the astronomy."

Toady was smiling in the hall.
Smiling with all his might:
He did his very best to make
His features gay and bright:
And that was very odd, because
No Peggy was in sight.

Edna is not very small,
Maybelle is not very tall:
Apart they almost never go,
Because they fit together so.

Sing a song of several scents,
Breakfast is quite nigh;
Eleven nice smooth little eggs
We're about to try.
When the eggs are opened,
The chicks begin to sing—
Guess I'll go and study—
No, thanks, not anything.

Come, come, let's look, have I any mail?
Yes, joy, that I have! Three without fail.
Notice from Miss Bates, bill for my lunch,
And one for my wife; what a sickly bunch!

A dillar, a dollar,
A ten o'clock scholar.
What makes Tom Hall so late?
He used to get up at six o'clock,
But now he doesn't budge till eight.

Prof. Pace (very much enthused)—“This line in Chancer is incorrect, for have we any proof of the existence of orchestras in biblical times?”

Soyars—“Oh, yes, sir! for we read of Moses leading the band of Israelites.”

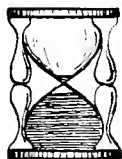

Dean—“Would you mind telling me what time it is, Grace?”

Grace Helmick (feeling for her watch, suddenly remembering)—“Oh, Gosh! I've hocked it.”

I sought in vain for an asymptote.

Ho! My Tangent! The curve is long.
A savage surd sprang at my throat,
The cosine uttered his fearsome note,
And the integral muttered, “I've got your goat,”
Out from infinity.

Dr. Rosenberg—“Do you expect to espouse the stage, Miss Coker?”

THE SWARTHMORE COLLEGE

1910

1911

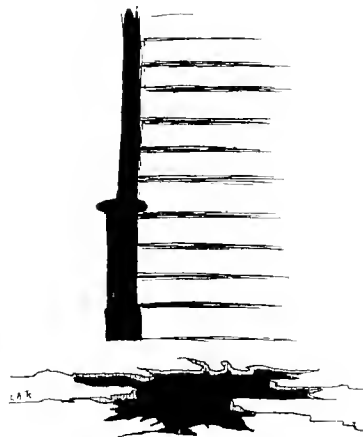

- May 3. 1911 HALCYON appears like a green plague.
Devoured—indigestible.
4. Effect of yesterday still felt. Table question discussed. A and B. Weaver to the fore.

F I K's safely pin seven Freshmen. Miss Bronk roused.

- May 5. 1912 HALCYON staff elected.
Book and Key gives annual show.
6. We all got up at 3 A. M.
And we don't give a —.
7. Invasion of old maids—Teachers' Conference.
11. Anna White and Mary Osgood sport pansies.
13. Freshmen girls give circus—finest show on earth.
15. Bahny spring day. Increased enrollment in campustry.
17. Sophomore picnic. Class gets even with Dr. Pearson and Miss Early for declamation.
18. First 1912 HALCYON meeting.
Girls help Halley look for his tail on the fire escape.

- May 19. Girls' auction sale.
 21. Cornelia falls downstairs with a dull sickening thud.

23. Steve announces Freshmen girls' class meeting.
 25. Women's Student Government Association elections to tune of "O Sister, Won't You Help Me to Pray." Emma Marshall pronouncees the benediction.
 26. Worms Osgood, Rittenhouse and Haines make their slimy appearance.

 30. The beginning of the end. Everyone's finish in sight.
 31. Large bunch of assorted girls try to drown their woes in Prep. pool. Bathing suits and chaperones at a premium.
 Priscilla and Guy practice strenuously.
- June 1. Frank superintends Senior practice.
 2. More Roberts's go $J Y$
 Faculty-Senior baseball game.
 Prexy stars on first base. Gray-check suit gets there by hard running.
 Collection cuts and athletics weed out about half the class of 1909.
 3. Exit Freshmen.
 Natalie begins Mary Smith's education—tells her how Miss Meeteer and Father Time fuss by east elevator.
 Jean Walker gives Seniors big blow-out.
 4. Class of 1912 ably fill the dining room while Seniors are at Prexy's luncheon, Juniors feed along Crum, and Freshmen are in happy homes.

June 5. Baccalaureate. Juniors and Sophs stung on sentiments. Rain frustrates fussers.

1912 puts in some hard work in damp daisy fields. Last collection—eyes remarkably dry.

6. Class Day. Sophomores get still busier; even Juniors say results are best ever. Corson makes things hum. Pauline Fay announces her engagement.

Tempest rages from 5 to 7. Tin thunder terrifies the timid. 1910 Pres. Caliban wins admiration. Mr. Booth makes a young fortune.

June 6. Evening—Fusser's Paradise. Gym steps crowded. Campus illuminated. Party in Delphic Room—guests arrive and depart through windows.

7. Alumni Day—Lums flock. Chimes dedicated and go off at 12. Reunions of '90, '95, '08.

Baseball—Franklin and Marshall.

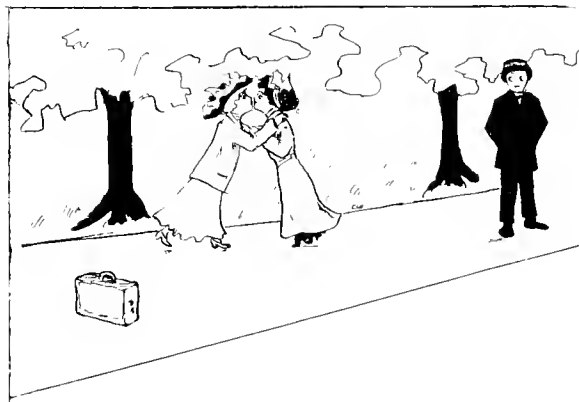

Lacrosse—Toronto beat us 5-2 owing to mumps attacking our team.

8. Packing, good-byes, Commencement and the end.

Sept. 19. Football men and rushing autos on the job.

Sept. 20. General return. Promiscuous osculation on Asphaltum. New pets, new seats, new stumps.

21. Same old red, white and blue cards and green Freshmen.

Upper classmen display unprecedented kindness to Freshmen.

21. Miss Meeteer and Edith Harper in molasses contest.

Sophs re-Freshed. Freshmen's busy night.

22. First Collection. Miss Lape attends and smiles.

Soyars sells Phœnix.

Sept. 23. Veiled atmosphere of excitement and speculation.

24. Keg rush and many minor rushes.
Old girls to new dance.

25. Meeting seats not posted—slim attendance.
Y. M. C. A. hatched.

26. A few great minds indulge in study.
Ruth V. dreams of the Stiff's toes and drops
Human Anatomy.

27. Nan and Iva awaken Freshmen by falling through their door.

29. Freshmen girls have two feeds. Both "unsportsmanlike" (see Sophs).

Sept. 30. Prexy's lawn-warming and first extemp. speech. Girls everywhere, boys ten deep around ice cream stands. Punch bowl presented.

- Oct. 1. Beat Lebanon Valley 47-0 owing to Iva's new song.
3. Rex goes to sleep in Physics.
4. Prexy in Collection, "All young men interested in Y. W. C. A. meet in Collection Hall at 7.15."
5. Picnic invitations fall manna-like from heaven.
- Toady Miller as Gabriel with his tin band.
- Freshmen boys in willowy ties.

- Oct. 6. No ties at all.
7. Exit Mr. and Mrs. Prexy amidst cheers and rice.
- Airships and buggy jokes alternated on screen for two hours with comments by lecturer.
8. Last of Prexy in form of large red mottoes. Promptly sent home to mother.
- Lafayette, 6; Swarthmore, 0.
9. Gas house conflagration. Tin band called out. Father Tempus fugits. Parrish plunged in darkness and candle grease.
10. Prexy and Ike Clothier exchange Marconi remarks on Lafayette game.
11. Newt. Tarble sings.
12. Penn comes out for practice, while Laura Boram fusses.
13. Youthful Niagara from Fourth East tank down back stairs rivals in interest the Dean's tea served with boys.
- Dr. Fauver explains the art of betting.

- Oct. 14. More mystery—B. K. wire rings.
Paul Browning soils the Crum.
Stone seats appear by Asphaltum, offering secluded nook to weary fussers.

15. Louis absent from Collection, but held reception in alcove.
Second West party—Ruth as Hayes and Matilda for a change. Chorus girls in rare hobbles.
Rutgers, 21; Swarthmore, 6.
16. Joe Willits spills collection plate in church.

- Oct. 17. Joe brings candy to the table.
Disappointed Duffers picnic on the Crocodile.
Memory Man mesmerizes maidens.
18. Phœnix out—Tod buys a new hat.
Russell's Rules of Order in every box.

- Oct. 19. Mary Osgood receives roses for her birthday.
 Russell Henry and Nell walk out of the dining room together. Everyone smiles but the Dean.

Epilogue

The evening glow fades into tender gray,
And purple shadows fill the dog-wood's bloom ;
One clear white star shines faintly in the west ;
The air is hushed, and all the woods are mute.
But hark ! From out their depths the vesper note
Of a lone woodthrush stays the coming night,
And pours upon the silence such a song
As strikes the keynote of our faith and hope
For this our book ; and so, farewell.
